HoloSprint is a modern version of "handheld car racing" gameplay. The game is controlled by gestures performed on the webcams main display screen. There are four steering modes: left and right, single-handed, car-to-car and car-to-wall. In HoloSprint, you control the vehicle by the same hand that drives, so you don't need a controller, and it can even work with just a normal webcam. On HoloSprint, once you drive, your car never stops racing. You can change the steering angle by gesturing with an arm or a leg. In case you miss a turn, the system will notify you about it by changing the steering angle. If you touch the back wall or any other wall, the car will roll or jump back into the track. In the game, on the other hand, the objective is to avoid crashing by hitting the walls. The game is designed to be controlled by gestures and not by keyboard or a controller. The steering angle can be adjusted between -90 and 90 degrees. Tap and hold the steering in one direction for a long time to enter a sprint. Hold and move the steering for an instant to go into a start/stop. This game was designed to be an entry level first experience using HoloSprint's gesture recognition technology. All features are fully customizable so the game can be adapted to any player's experience level and interests. This game was developed for HoloLens for Windows Mixed Reality platform. HoloSprint is the result of over three years of research and development. During that time, HoloSprint has been played by many developers from all around the world. This game has a rating of 4.2 on average, and a "Fluid" rating of 93% on average from independent user ratings.

The game supports both Windows Mixed Reality and HoloLens for Windows Mixed Reality. We are the creators of the HoloSprint game, a gesture recognition technology. More info on holosprint.com
